1. Renault XBA 800cc Small Hatchback

Expected Launch:Second-half of 2015
Expected Price:Rs. 3 lakh

Renault Indiawill launch multiple all-new products in the next 18 months, including a compact MPV, an entry-level hatchback, and a sub-compact SUV. While the Lodgy will arrive here by early FY15, the small hatchback will be based on the CMF-A platform - which too has been jointly developed by Renault and Nissan. Expected to be highly fuel-efficient, Renault's small hatch will rival Maruti Suzuki Alto 800, Hyundai Eon and Datsun Go.

2. Datsun redi-GO-Inspired Hatchback

Expected Launch:Festive season
Expected Price:Rs. 2.50 lakh
ThoughNissan's low-cost car brand, Datsun, already has a budget hatchback, called the 'GO', the company is now working on an even cheaper hatchback to take 800cc, 3-cylinder petrol unit. Since the company currently doesn't

Though there is no clarity on what engine options the small hatch will have a small diesel engine, the small hatch might be launched with only petrol and LPG options.

3. Tata Nano Twist AMT

Expected Launch:Mid-2015
Expected Price:Rs. 2.50 lakh
Showcased at the 2014 Delhi Auto Expo, the Nano Twist AMT (automated manual transmission) will be the first product that the company will launch in this financial year. The vehicle is already on test in India, and will be developed at Tata's Sanand plant - where the regular Nano is also manufactured. The Nano Twist AMT will feature the same 624cc MPFI naturally-aspirated twin-cylinder engine that powers the regular Nano, albeit with a 5-speed AMT. Besides AMT, this model will also feature new bumpers, fog-lamps, and different head-lamps. The cabin, however, is likely to remain unchanged.

4. Tata Kite Hatchback

Expected Launch:Second half of 2015
Expected Price:Rs. 3 lakh - Rs. 3.50 lakh
Tata Motorsis working on a new hatchback, codenamed Kite, to replace the ageing Indica eV2.

come equipped with, Tata Motors has the option to utilise the 1.2-litre petrol and the 1.4-litre diesel units. Both these engine also power the Indica. Since the company has already started testing the vehicle in India, expect it to be rolled out sometime in the first half of 2015.

5. Tata Pelican 800

Expected Launch:End of 2015
Expected Price:Rs. 2.50 lakh
Besides the Kite siblings - a hatchback and sub-compact sedan - the homegrown automaker is working on yet another affordable hatchback, codenamed Pelican, to take on the likes of Maruti Alto K10, Hyundai Eon, and others in the segment. Though the Pelican will be based on the Nano, it will be a slightly more up-market product with a bigger engine. The company will position it between the Nano and the Kite hatchback. If reports are to be believed, the company is working on a 1000cc petrol engine and a 800cc diesel motor that might power several entry-level Tata cars, including the Pelican.

Udaipur City Railway Station to be illuminated with solar lights

RH Team The unlimited power of the Sun is world known and the science is hunting for new ways to encash those energies to make our lives simpler and cheaper. All the building which are solar equipped are not only saving on money but also are promoting energy conservation ideas. porate Responsibility and it was first such project of NorthernWestern railways. The inauguration took place on Sunday, April 5. "Under the Ajmer zone, Udaipur is second such station which is powered by solar energy. The other solar energy backed station is Ajmer itself. Udaipur's power system if of 20 kilowatt peak (kWp) power, says Kamals Sharma, the ARO.

Art exhibition 'Bachpan'

RH TEAM : Veteran painter professor Suresh sharma in consonance with professor Lakshmilal Verma has said that in the present age, there are very few artists who paint realistic pictures. And in those few ones, those who paint kids on canvas in a realistic frame are very few. He urged that such artists should be encouraged and be given more platforms to perform. These veterans opined on the occasion of inauguration of three-day exhibition of painter Abhilash Bhavsar's paintings that are based on theme of children. Abhilash is a renowned artist from Dungarpur of Rajasthan. Abhilash's work was praised by one and all and the veterans said that such work should be showcased more on higher level platforms. The theme and color combinations left the onlookers amazed at the talent and mindset of the painter Abhilash. Most of the people found it realistic and very fascinating art. Bhavsar apprised that the exhibition will remain open till April 5 from 11 am to 8 pm.

Raje urges non-residents to invest in Rajasthan

RH Team

JAIPUR: Chief minister Vasundhara Raje has urged non-residents of Rajasthan to invest in the state's industrial sector and be its pioneers. Raje said it on the sidelines of the Bharatiya Janata Party's executive meet in Bengaluru late on Friday evening. She said the people of Rajasthan have made their names as industry honchos in different sectors and time has come that the non-residents invest in the state and be part of its development. This would generate more employment in the state, the chief minister added. She also met representatives of the non-resident Gurjar community during the event. Raje returned to Delhi on Saturday evening from where she would leave for a seven-day business trip to Japan. She'd be accompanied by a battery of senior officials, who would meet authorities and industrialists in Japan and promote the investment avenues in the state. The state government has been promoting investment in the state ahead of its muchtouted Resurgent Rajasthan scheduled to be held in November. Meanwhile, the state BJP leadership highlighted its recent wins in the civic body and panchayat elections by inducting over 62 lakh primary members in the state.

Government should be sensitive towards farmers: Gehlot

RH Team

"Government's decision to buy wheat at the rate of 1450 per quintal is double blow to farmers who are already struggling from hail fall," said the former chief minister Ashok Gehlot. He also slammed the government's decision to recall the bonus of 150 rupees per quintal which the last government was hiving to the farmers. Taking on the chief minister, he argued that farmers are already facing disaster on unexpected rains and loss of crops. It was highly expected that government will announce some bonus for farmers to get out of this catastrophe by nature. But on contrary, he said that government has withdrew the bonus and have not announced any raise in minimum support value to give some relief for them. Former chief minister said that the farmer has been ruined already. "On one hand all ministers and even central ministers talk about standing by the side of farmers and on the other take no action at all to compensate the losses of victims. Gehlot said that untimely rains and hail fall has ruined crops and the part which has survived has lost quality due to wet ambience. He feared that the price of crops will further fall and the farmer will be at the receiving end.
