A Happier You!

Festivities are upon us and it is high time to get happy and content. Festivals were anyways created in the positive spirit of our life which remains tensed throughout the normal days. But if you ask yourself, these festivals are becoming more than a burden on the shoulder of middle class families more than anyone else. Comparison drawn by kids keep the shoulders and eyes of parents down throughout the festivities. Not all can afford new clothes, expensive appliances, or costly crackers. So what, are you sure you cannot be happy or keep the family content with whatever you have? I doubt and so would you.

Actually it's all about mindset and we are the designers of this inferiority mindset. First of all as an adult, you must understand and realize that you are doing your best to keep your family happy. If despite all the hard work, integrity, and honesty, you are not rich enough, you are not to be blamed for it. Secondly, learn to look below your standard when you draw a comparison chart. See the car cleaner, maid, postman, watchman, and other subordinates of you. All they envy what you already have. Their happiness is just to achieve the level you have. So, in that sense, you are richer.

Now, inculcate these principles to your kids. Show them the kids who are begging at the signal. Show them the kids of your own maid who become ecstatic when a toy discarded by your kid is given to them. See the value of their happiness. The cost it takes to make them happy is nothing for you. If taught properly and with full self-understanding, you will be able to find all the happiness back in home without much stuff but with much love.

Another way of keeping yourself happy is the comparing it right. Instead of comparing with a richer neighbour, compare your current festive season with an older season of same time. Most likely, you will feel better. You have more money. You have more things at home. Your kids are in higher classes. And your wife looks prettier.

The key to happiness lies in the attitude which must be homebound. If you are busy admiring sweet kids, nice wife, great parents, nice job, and better wealth than your maid, you are less likely to have time to see or be envy of the car of your neighbour.

Go ahead, your family is waiting for that positive attitude that knows only to be happy in all cases.

TV Premier of Sultan on Sony MAX on 15th October at 8pm

Udaipur: Sony MAX, India's premiere Hindi movie channel brings the story of Sultan Ali Khan, a man with no ambitions until he falls for a local wrestler, Arfa with the World Television Premiere of the romantic action drama Sultan on Saturday, 15th October at 8pm.

Directed by Ali Abbas Zafar with Salman Khan and Anushka Sharma in pivotal roles and Randeep Hooda in a guest appearance, Sultan is the story of a wrestler's journey from being a childlike, underdog Jat to becoming the world champion because of the grit, sweat and love. The film beautifully captures the glory and grandeur of wrestling as a sport with larger than life performances by Salman Khan and Anushka Sharma.

Comments: Ali Abbas Zafar, Director: "I have always been a fan of sports. As a director you always have your favorite genres. So sports drama was one of my favorite genres. The idea was to tell a personal journey of a sportsman and how the sport that he plays is the metaphor in his life. But in the end it is a hopeful story which says that no matter what happens, no matter how many times life pulls you down you need to get up, you need to fight back and you need to rise."

Salman Khan, Actor: "We have done so many Hindi filmy fights and that's what we are used to.

So to break away from that and fight like a real professional I had to train for boxing. I have learnt these four-five special kicks. The difficult part was also the wrestling bits. The blows were all aimed very low and that was kind of tough for me."

Anushka Sharma, Actor: "I wouldn't have had apprehensions but I did because I had very little time to prep for the role. It wasn't like a regular character that I just had to do a costume trial and hair and make-up trial and walk on set and learn my dialogues. It required me to change myself physically. I had to learn an entirely new thing, which is wrestling. I was a bit nervous and wondering if I will be able to manage in such a short time because from the day I came on board to the first bout they were going to shoot with me I had less than 6 weeks."

Akshay Rangshahi Stars in 'Ishq Junoon-The Heat Is On'

Udaipur: The bold romantic film 'Ishq Junoon-The Heat Is On' produced by the popular director Anil Sharma's brother Anuj Sharma and directed by his brother Sanjay Sharma is slated for release on November 11, 2016 all over the world. Akshay Rangshahi, who happens to be the son of the DSP Ashok Rangshahi of Indore (M.P) is playing one of them two leads in the film along with an actor called Raj. Akshay is playing the role of a young man called Veer, who is not like any other young contemporary man but lives life on his own and leads a life of his in a world of his own. Raj is his childhood friend and both are ready to sacrifice each other's life for the sake of one another. One day Akshay goes to Raj's college and happens to watch Paakhi, played by Divya Singh in a programme and instantly falls in love with her at the first sight but when later realizes that she is his friend's girl friend, the story takes an altogether different turn.

Akshay has a lot of romantic and sexy scenes in the film. When asked whether he had any aspersions about playing a sexy and bold role like that of Akshay in the film especially when he happens to be the son of the DSP of Indore, Akshay retorts, "If I do a similar thing in real life, I agree it will be totally wrong. Today several actors and actresses all over the country happen to be leaders of the nation, who have also played different kinds of roles on the screen as actors. Were they wrong?"

Akshay Rangshahi concludes, "My role is very good in the film and it is for the first time that producer Anuj Sharmaji has given me a break and hence I have played the role. I seek an apology if anyone is hurt by my playing a bold role. After all, it is only a role in a film and since the film has been made well, I am one hundred per cent confident that the audiences will lap up my role and the film in a big way."
