

ROYAL HARBINGER

Reporting Fact of the Matter

Weekly

PAGE 2 : Avoid allergic conditions on Skin & Hair During this Monsoon..

PAGE 3 : EHANSRAJ CHOUDHARY SUBMITTED IMPORTANT SUGGESTION IN GST ...

UDAIPUR | MONDAY, JULY 23, 2018 | PAGE 1 - 4 | PRICE : 5.00* (Vol. 04, No. 20) Postal Registration No.RJ/UD/ 29-134/2017-2019

Of Arrogance and Indifference

Dr. H.S.Chandalia

The "No-Confidence Motion" debate in the Parliament proved to be a No Confidence in the ruling NDA led by BJP and equally in Indian National Congress because the BJP showed its haughty arrogance of the numbers it had while the Congress supported it through the indifference it showed in supporting the motion it had floated in the parliament. It is true that everyone knew the outcome of the debate but every one was hopeful that the opposition will be successful in cornering the government on some of the mega issues that throttle the democracy in the country. The debate proved to be a no-confidence against both the big political parties namely BJP and Congress. If one goes by the level and content of the debate it would be amply clear that the smaller political parties succeeded immensely in making their point be it CPIM, AAP, Telugudesham, National Conference, Trinamul Congress and even to some extent RJD and Samajvaadi Party. Their representative speakers could put the BJP in dock on national as well as regional issues related to their respective states. The Telugudesham symphony continued ceaselessly during the reply of the Prime Minister which made Mr. Narendra Modi wipe his perspiration again and again from his forehead. He was churning lies about employment generated by the government but surprisingly enough no body in Congress had the guts to contradict him though it was clear that he was referring to those sectors of economy for which government does not do anything to create jobs. As usual the Prime Minister's reply was full of rhetoric, theatrics, mockery and obscene arrogance reflected in his mockery of the President of Congress Rahul Gandhi. He did not reply to the questions of mob-lynching, rising prices of diesel and petrol, falling per capita income, killing of police, para military forces and army jawans and officers at the border, suicide of peasants, increasing violence against women, falling standards of education, attack on dalits and massive use of money in election-rallies. The demand of Andhra Pradesh and Bihar for a special status was not met and no convincing reason was given by the government for not fulfilling electoral promises given to the two states as well as to the people at large.

The opposition's voice in the debate appeared to be a cry in the wilderness. It was abundantly clear that the issues of the people got a back seat while the entire exercise was to prove might for 2019 elections. The move by Rahul Gandhi to hug the Prime Minister Narendra Modi sent ripples in the house. Had he done it with seriousness without the winking that followed it, he would have set an example in Indian Parliamentary history but his naïve action of winking provided BJP with so much of arsenal that his exercise proved not only futile but fatal for his party. His action was spontaneous of designed didn't matter much. It could have been seen as a healthy sign of democratic behavior. Even the winking may not be related to his hugging the Prime Minister but the BJP leaders succeeded in linking the two and got the upper hand. This must be kept in mind that the Sangh Parivaar has the biggest force of propaganda at the ground level as well as in the print and electronic media as the biggest corporate are beneficiaries of this regime. The outcome of this debate is a one-liner message for Indian political observers that the regional parties and their leaders are a key to the defeat of NDA in 2019 elections and if Congress has to stop NDA from coming to power again, it should not hesitate in fighting with this menace even as a junior partner where it is not in full power. States like Jammu and Kashmir, Bihar, Tamilnadu, West Bengal, Haryana, Andhra Pradesh, Telangana, Uttar Pradesh, Tripura and some of the North Eastern states could be seen as states where this strategy of division of seats to check the division of votes may be fruitful.

PM Modi wins the trust vote, Rahul Gandhi the debate

New Delhi: Congress President Rahul Gandhi speaks to Prime Minister Narendra Modi after his speech in the Lok Sabha on 'no-confidence motion' during the Monsoon Session of Parliament, in New Delhi on Friday, July 20, 2018. Even as the BJP initiated a breach of privilege motion against Rahul and PM Modi accused him of playing with national security, it was the PM who came across as petulant and juvenile in the Lok Sabha. As expected, the Government on Friday won the trust vote comprehensively with as many as 325 Lok Sabha members voting against the motion. But the day belonged to the opposition, which exposed BJP's desperate dependence on the Prime Minister and his oratory skills. The Government was aided by abstention by the Shiv Sena and the Biju Janata Dal and by the support extended by allies like LJP, TRS, AIADMK and JD(U) among others. But the day's laurels went to the Opposition parties which unexpectedly were able to put the Government on the mat. The Opposition benches were calm and composed throughout the debate while members on the treasury benches were restive, heckled the speakers and tried to disrupt speeches of Congress President Rahul Gandhi among others. Little wonder that at the end of the day, the defeated beamed like victors while the victorious wore long faces. The eleven-hour long debate in the Lok Sabha saw some exceptional interventions by Jayadev Galla of the TDP, who moved the motion, and Congress President Rahul Gandhi. The opposition had the better of the exchanges with even the likes of Asaduddin Owaisi, Badruddin Ajmal, Dinesh Trivedi and others making full use of the little time, often just two minutes, to make their point. The Prime Minister in his almost two-hour long reply mostly read out from files, notings and books and seemed out of sorts. Despite the trademark mimicry, expressive hand movements and his mocking tone and tenor, the unusually flat address sounded less than convincing, notwithstanding TV channels describing his rebuttal as stunning. For a change, it was the Prime Minister who read out from notes and files while Rahul Gandhi delivered an extempore speech. The reply was also marked by interruptions from TDP MPs who accused him of lying and not addressing their concerns. The PM revealed that he had called Chandrababu Naidu and told him that Naidu had been trapped by the YSR Congress of Jaganmohan Reddy and would not be able to come out. That obviously did not satisfy the TDP members who kept up a steady chant of 'shame, shame'. When was the last time Prime Minister Modi had to deliver speeches in Parliament through such disruptive slogans? It was not just the Prime Minister but most members on the treasury benches wore grim faces and appeared in a state of shock. They had not bargained for the sustained onslaught by speakers from the opposition. The debate on the no-confidence motion, which had been described as suicidal for the opposition, was seized by the Congress President Rahul Gandhi to deliver arguably his best address in Parliament till now. He surprised treasury benches with his direct attacks on the PM and the Defence Minister Nirmala Sitharaman, reducing Anurag Thakur of the BJP into a fuming, frothing in the mouth and screaming caricature. Thakur in fact threatened at one time to stop members of the opposition from speaking.

An Evening of Glamour and Hopes

illuminati-2018

Udaipur: Udaipur witnessed the glamour of the fashion industry at Illuminati-2018, a fashion show organized by the Pacific Institute of Fashion Technology and Mass Communication has in its ambit top models and ace fashion designers of the country on July 15th at the Sukhadia Rang Manch Town Hall. During the show, the celebrity models of the country catwalked. Their garment costumes were made by students on Law Rowe Ja, Hilltop, Rajasthan Royals and Classy Macei Theme. film actress Raima Sen, film director Aryaman Ramsay, Lila Devi Agarwal, Paher's Finance Secretary Ashish Agrawal, and Pacific Institute of Fashion Technology Director Sheetal Agrawal graced the ceremony as a guest. Pacific University's Financial Secretary Ashish Agrawal said that there is a lot of talent about fashion in Udaipur. needed, only to carve it. Students of the institute had started preparing for the ceremony a month ago, which has brought color today. Pacific Institute of Fashion Technology and Mass will always try to provide the best platforms to the students. The ceremony was first performed in Gulab and Gulkand's theme based La La Rosa, where students used to wear rose petals and wearing tin and tone and dressed in attractive clothes. When the models rode on the ramp, everyone greeted them. That's done with thunderstorms. After this, in the Hilltop Round, there was the use of military prints and colors, which were designed by the combination of amazing elements using flowers such as flowers and ruffles to make the students dynamic and impressive, the audience appreciated the presentation to these costumes. Abhay Agrawal, the child artist of Ranbanka and Hanamat Pagli film, presented a dance show on ABCD' song Bezubba in the show and got the applause from everyone by walking on the ramp. After this, the garments were inspired by various cities and cultures of Rajasthan in Rajasthan Royals Round. In it, glass and cottage leaves were used on clothes. Models presented the traditional culture of Rajasthan with the use of principals and bondage, which was appreciated by all. All the rounds showed a lot of hard work on jewelry setup and make-up, which gave the audience a freshness in the jewellery. The show was choreographed by designer Gagan Kumar. He has used the theme based on traditional choreography and bringing drama, emotion and light and music. Instructors of the Pacific Institute of Fashion Technology and Mass Communication, under the direction of designer Gagan Kumar, made fashion alive with latest and trendy costumes. During this time, one cultural presentation of students forced the crowd to tumble. The best students award was given to Heena Lodha, Girijati Raju, Harsh Tawani, Vasant Mali, Shagun Maheshwari, Asiya Khan, Aanchal Chugh, Srishti Purohit, Mohammad Aasaf. Operation PIFT's Aanchal Chugh and Alicia Masi did. Students of the institute at the Alumni-2018 Fashion Show left their mark in various activities under the direction of Sheetal Agrawal. In Best Designer Female Round, Anchal Chung, and Deshana Patalia remained first, while the second position was awarded to Shagun Maheshwari and third Amisha Pardiya. The best designer male round was given to Satyapi Vyas first and Neha Kumari. The Best Theme Award was given to Royal Rajasthan and the Second to Hilltop. In the Best Designer Kids Round, Divya Mahatma felicitated with the first rank and the second position was conferred to Rashmi Bajaj.

Get Relief from Stress by Just 6 Minutes

Udaipur: Due to hectic lifestyle, stress is the common problem faced by people. Primary reason of many diseases is only stress. Meditation is the best way to stay calm, happy, energetic and stress-free. But many people from us cannot meditate due to various reasons, such as not getting time, absence of proper guidance, lack of concentration, etc. In the current digital age, interactive meditation is the solutions to all these problems. Just 6 minutes interactive meditation can make people stress-free, energetic and consequently increases immunity of a person and a person stays healthy. This meditation method uses biofeedback, virtual reality and interactive games to make the meditation interesting and effective. Interactive meditation method measures the biological responses during meditation and according to those measures calculate the meditation success score of the person. In interactive meditation different meditation modes are available and the person can select the meditation mode according to the interest. A person can easily measure the meditation success score by doing interactive meditation and simultaneously the user can increase the intensity of meditation by following the guidance given by the device. Dr. Arvinder Singh, the CEO and CMD of Arth Diagnostics collaborated with the Unyte (Canadian company) and introduced interactive meditation concept first time in India. The money value of interactive meditation device in foreign market is approximately 50 thousand rupees. However Dr. Singh has made the interactive device available in Indian market in less than half of this price.

Prof Vijay Shrimali passes away

Udaipur: Prof Vijay Shrimali passed away today evening after a sudden heart attack. He was 59. His last rites will be performed on Sunday in Udaipur. Prof Shrimali was long suffering from Diabetes and he passed away today at Fortis hospital. His death has sent shock waves across the education fraternity in the State and more so in Udaipur given his long association and contribution to the academic institutions in the city. Prof Shrimali was serving as the Vice-Chancellor in MDS University, Ajmer. He had taken over this role only about 3 months back on 20-Apr. Prof Shrimali had served MLSU for over 3 decades and was loved and respected by students and colleagues alike. He had served as the Dean of University College of Commerce and Management Studies (UCCMS) and also Sports Chairman besides holding a variety of other administrative positions.

Alakh Nayan Mandir
Eye Institute

अलख

Services

- Super Specialized Eye Care
- Cataract: Robotic Phaco with Alcon Infinity
- Vitreo Retina • Glaucoma
- Lasik Laser & Refractive Surgery
- Eye Bank & Transplantation Centre
- Exclusive Pediatric Eye Care
- Latest Corneal Surgeries and C3R for Keratoconus

State of the Art
Eye Hospital
with
Modular Operation Theatres

'Alakh Hills' Pratap Nagar Extension, Near Transport Nagar, Udaipur Ph : 0294-2490971, 72, 9772204624
email : info@alakhnayanmandir.org, Website : www.alakhnayanmandir.org