Treasure

The white handkerchief immersed
In your honest poem of black tears,
The wrappers of Hide n Seek u sent me
Via post with red ribbons ,
The bills of every strange pizza which I ate
For those enthralling rides...
The taste of every last bite
Which I left for some innocently greedy eyes...

The patterns you made on my arms and heart,
Are still intact and a deep sigh...
I stroll around seeing hands together...
The lines u changed in my palms I remember

The colors we painted on our future home...
I remember u chose red...now those drapes have caught fire...
But I still possess the ashes...
Your stupid one liners...your scintillating smell,
The loose fitting thumb ring u gave I still have....
Some of your tears ...some of your dejected anguish filled arrows...
Those scars on my soul are still unstitched
Your each expression...my first confession...
Your fake smile...your poor lies...
Are safe in my vault as my treasure....

Sonia Gandhi: We must fight forces of divisiveness, hate and bigotry

New Delhi: Speaking at Rajiv Gandhi Sadbhavana Award function on Monday, UPA chairperson Sonia Gandhi appealed to the people to collectively fight against "forces of divisiveness, hate and bigotry"
The UPA Chairperson Sonia Gandhi appealed to people to collectively fight against "forces of divisiveness, hate and bigotry" and expressed her resolve "to oppose the ideologies that reject the composite essence of our nationhood".
She was speaking at the Rajiv Gandhi Sadbhavana Award function, where the former West Bengal Governor Gopal Krishna Gandhi was conferred the award for his contribution to communal harmony and peace, on Monday.
In a veiled reference to the BJP-RSS combine, Gandhi said, "We have seen that the opening of the economy and the closing of the mind is a dangerous and destructive mix. Outlining Gopal Gandhi's contribution, Sonia Gandhi said, "He has been an uncompromising champion of values enshrined in our Constitution which are now under determined and systematic assault.
"Highlighting "relevance and resonance" of 'Sadbhavana' in the current times, she asserted that for Rajiv Gandhi, 'Sadbhavana' was "not just a passive acquiescence and tolerance of different points of view but active engagement - so that every citizen of India is enabled to lead a life of dignity, security and self-respect".
"Those unsavoury trends of growing intolerance, communal polarization, growing incidence of violent crimes propelled by hatred of certain groups and of mobs taking the law in their own hand can only harm the national interest of our country," said Manmohan Singh.
Given every year on Rajiv Gandhi's birthday, the award was instituted in 1992 to mark his contributions to promote peace, communal harmony and fight against violence in the country. The award carries a citation and a cash award of 10 lakh. "Rajiv Gandhi was an unwavering believer that India's unity was actually derived from and strengthened by her incredible diversity. That is what Sadbhavana meant to him -- not just acceptance of, not just respect for, but most fundamentally a celebration of our society's many diversities," she added.

Paying his homage to Rajiv Gandhi, former Prime Minister, Manmohan Singh said that India has been witnessing disturbing trends over the past few years. "Some disturbing trends that our country has been witnessing over the past few years call for solemn reflection. These unsavoury trends of growing intolerance, communal polarisation, growing violent crime propelled by a hatred of certain groups and of mobs taking the law in their own hands can only harm national interests," said Manmohan Singh.
"They are an anathema to the promotion of peace, national integration and communal harmony, which are the cherished objectives enshrined in our magnificent Constitution. All of us perhaps need to pause and reflect on how we can go together and contribute to arresting these trends," Singh added.
Talking about Gopal Krishna Gandhi, the former prime minister said, "On a number of occasions, he has even pointed out that the popularly held position need not be blindly accepted but should be probed deeper to find out which is justified in light of national interest."
Former recipients of the Rajiv Gandhi Sadbhavana Award include Mother Teresa, Ustad Bismillah Khan, Lata Mangeshkar, Sunil Dutt, Dilip Kumar, Kapila Vatsyayan, KR Narayanan, Ustad Amjad Ali Khan, Muzaffar Ali and Shubha Mudgal.

LAXMIDEVI'S PRIDE AND HONOR IS HER 'SAKHI SABJI CENTRE'

Udaipur: Today, Laxmidevi's vegetable cart is not only famous in her community but also in her entire village of Putholi in Chittorgarh, for her fresh vegetables.

Laxmidevi's husband's income did not suffice the needs of the family, especially her daughter's education. One day, she came to know about Hindustan Zinc's Self Help Group (SHG) from other women of her village and she joined one of the SHGs called Radha Rani Samooh. These SHGs function on the method of 'thrift savings' and are linked with banks for loans, at much subsidized rates, which substantially scales up small-scale businesses.
Laxmidevi took a loan of Rs. 3000/- from the samooh to start making earthen pots. By selling these pots, she made a profit of almost Rs. 3000/- . But the season of earthenware had subdued and she stopped making enough money. Laxmidevi was doubtful to start with a new business. However, she had noticed that the women of her village had to travel to far away mandis to fetch fresh vegetables. To help them, ambitious Laxmidevi planned to switch to selling vegetables in her village. Hence, she took a loan of another Rs. 3000/- from her samooh to set up her vegetable selling business.
With the strong support of her family, she also bought a vegetable hand-cart. Every morning, Laxmidevi gets vegetables from the mandi and sells it in her village and today she makes a profit of more than Rs. 6000/- every month.

"Since the time I have been part of the samooh, I feel completely independent. I have a stable source of income. We don't face any more financial problems. Through my business, I not only help the village ladies, but also earn from it. I am grateful to Hindustan Zinc for giving me my independence..." says beaming Laxmidevi.
The Sakhi project has been developed to contribute towards socio-economic empowerment of rural women. Currently, 'Sakhi' is reaching out to about 19,860 rural and tribal women through almost 1565 SHGs in Rajasthan and Pantnagar.
Independent and confident Laxmidevi, who has ignited a spark of hope in other women of her village, may soon lead to a new story of empowerment in the life of another Sakhi like her...

"GMCH Doctors repair heart blood vessel without surgery"

GMCH's Cardiologist performed non-surgical closure for the first time

Udaipur: A 50 year's old woman who was diagnosed with ruptured sinus of valsalva (RSOV) in the right ventricle -- a communication between aorta and right side of the heart, underwent the rare non-surgical closure of ruptured heart blood vessel at Geetanjali Medical College & Hospital by Cardiologist

Dr. Ramesh Patel & team. The doctors at Geetanjali Cardiac Center have demonstrated great skill in closing the ruptured heart blood vessel hailing from Banswara district. This is the first time any hospital has performed non-surgical closure of rupture of heart blood vessel. Santudibai Khatri, who had been in agony on account of ruptured heart blood vessel (aorta) and severe chest pain and breathlessness had reported in emergency. Usually, most such patients require open heart surgery for the cure. The percutaneous procedure can be done only in selected cases. This is the first time such a procedure was being performed in Southern Rajasthan. The team also included Cardiologist Dr. Shalabh Agarwal & Dr. Danny Kumar.

On diagnosis & further investigations of trans echo-cardiography, she was found to be suffering from rupture of sinus valsalva. "RSOV is a rare condition where there is a weakness of cusp of the aorta and it ruptures into the other chambers of the heart, resulting in the patient developing heart failure and increased pressure in the lungs. To this emergency note, immediate intervention of Cardiologist was needed to close the ruptured vessel. After diagnosis, we resorted to non-surgical closure of the 10 x 8 mm rupture and she was discharged the very next day. The procedure lasted only 45 minutes including the team of doctors as," said Dr. Ramesh Patel, the treating interventional cardiologist.

According to sources, the sinuses of valsalva are three small dilatations in the wall of the aorta, immediately above the attachments of each aortic cusp. Rupture of these sinuses can manifest as sudden cardiac death, congestive cardiac failure or arrhythmias. Closure of these defects if increasingly being performed by interventional cardiologists," said Dr. Patel.

Convention to explore the possibility of a Third Front in Assembly Elections

Udaipur: A convention of Left and other political parties of similar ideology was held on 19th August in Gujarat Samaj Dharmshala to build an alternative political consensus for a third front candidate in the coming assembly elections. Inaugurating the convention Shanker Lal Chaudhary, member, State Committee CPI(ML) said that when we talk of alternative politics we think of the ideology of Bhagat Singh and Dr. B.R. Ambedkar. He said that the BJP and Congress have a right wing approach and are historically represented the corporate and capitalist interests in the country. The left front alone can provide a people's alternative to the present ruling classes. He said that at the national level also a consensus has been built to defeat BJP in order to save the constitution and democracy in the country from the fascist forces. Comrade Pratap Singh Devra, District secretary of CPIM said that the left parties have always fought for the right of masses whether they are Street Vendors, Auto rickshaw drivers, Hand - Cart vendors, labourers, peasants, tribal people or women.

The election is a time to provide an alternative choice to the people. Dr. Chandra Deo Ola, district secretary of CPIM said that the only democratic alternative is a left unity because all other parties are serving the interest of the rich capitalists. They have purchased the media also. Ram Chandra Salvi of JantaDAI (S), Hemant Kumawat of AamAdami Party and Guman Singh Rao of ThelaMazdoor Union also said that there is a need to strengthen the alternative politics. Comrade Manju Verma, State Vice President of Janvaadi Mahila Samiti said that if the Party decides to contest election, Mahila Samiti will support it and participate wherever possible in the campaign.

Ashok Paliwal, former state secretary of DYFI said that since left parties do not use the strategy of religion, deceit and befooling people they must think twice before they arrive at any decision. Advocate Rajesh Singhvi, former municipal Councillor said that despite the fact that the resources with left parties are meager election should be contested because this is also a type of movement. Prof. H.S. Chandalia, concluding the debate said that election is an occasion to present an alternative model to the people. He said that the left front should include nationalization of educational institutions, adoption of labour intensive model of economy, repeal of labour reforms and implementation of more welfare schemes for the old, women and children and go to the masses with an alternative political programme.

The convention ended with observing two minutes silence in honour of the victims of flood in Kerala and with an appeal to people to help as much as possible the people of Kerala.
