

Why Do Males Love Aunties?

Don't be surprised to read the heading. I am not a research scholar but it is my general observation. After spending 45 years successfully on this planet, I came to this conclusion.

Actors are true examples of what I want to say exactly. Priyanka Chopra, Preity Zinta, Urmila, Farha Khan, Zeenat Aman... list is endless. Males love mature and elderly women mostly. Sometimes they choose to get married early and find out later that girls love make up, money and jewellery more than them. Mature women are emotionally strong and can hide their frustration better than young girls. Mostly mature women handle males better than young girls.

Indian boys love their moms the most who pamper them so much that these males can't accept girls who need their attention all the time.

Males are careless free birds and if girls try to cling with them all the time, they start escaping from them. Life is real but mostly girls live in dream world. A girl's prince charming is always ready to fulfill her demands but in real world males have to perform different tasks. It makes them rough and tough, they need only relaxation and space from girls which they often fail to give.

Editorial

Mature females have crossed the age of pampering, they know the value of time and money. They don't stop males to chase their dreams.

I have seen in real life also that males give preference to elderly women because they feel more secure with them. Actually there is a small baby in every man. He does not want to show his actual side and expects from a lady to know this without exposing himself.

Every age has its own benefits. Elderly women focus on their careers and know the value of time management. Nagging and scolding irritates a man so much that he can destroy his family in search of a good companion who never fights on silly topics.

For a man peace and love are more important than anything else.

I have seen many men who take divorce in middle age. May be it's incorrect in some people's opinion but it is important to have a healthy life and off course every one has a right to live life in his own way.

It does not mean that every relationship ends up badly with immature girls. It's simply my observation that men generally fell in love with elderly women. It is very common in foreign countries.

Even Indian guys are changing their mindsets. Let's not make it more complicated and leave it upon individual choice.

Life is one and in my opinion it's good to choose your partner without getting obsessed by society pressure. After all it's your life and it is better to choose right person rather than blaming others for the rest of your whole life. If you can't marry an elderly lady, at least you must have a friend of mature age who can guide you in many ways. It's not a big issue to have a crush on elderly women.

Neither I am taking side of men who do this nor I am refusing the idea completely.

Wishing Priyanka Chopra a happy life and future. For other couples it's just an opinion to follow your hearts with pride that at least you have the courage to break the old trends.

Third Ganga Gram Swachhata Sammelan held

New Delhi: Union Minister for Drinking Water and Sanitation Uma Bharati has said that people on the bank of Ganga need to take proactive charge of maintaining and raising sanitation standards so that the cleanliness of the river can be ensured. She was speaking at Ganga Gram Swachhata Sammelan at Kannauj, in Uttar Pradesh today. About eight thousands swachhagrahis, Ganga volunteers, youth organization members, students and people from all walks of life, majority of them women, attended the sammelan.

Ganga Gram is a concept to transform banks on the village of River Ganga into ideal villages with emphasis on ODF, Solid and Liquid Waste Management, Water Conservation, Ground Water Recharge, modern crematorium, tree plantation, organic and medicinal plant agriculture being the main components.

The Minister appreciated the efforts made by the district team, Panchayat representatives towards making Kannauj District Open Defecation Free (ODF). She mentioned that India has shown to the world how commitment of the government and spirit of the people could propel national sanitation coverage from a lowly 39 percent to over 96 percent. She urged people to participate in SLWM activities, not to litter around and pollute water sources, take care of their waste management, and promote organic farming.

She highlighted the importance of public participation in the success of SBM program across the country. She congratulated the exemplary efforts made by districts and state administration in achieving almost total Sanitation coverage in Uttar Pradesh.

Ms. Archana Pandey, State Minister, Government of Uttar Pradesh and Shri Akshay Rout Director General, Special Projects, MDWS, also spoke to highlight the roles played by the state and the central government in the area of Sanitation.

People's representatives, government officials from Centre and State were also present. Later Uma Bharati had a boat ride in Ganga waters along with local communities and planted trees on the bank. She appealed to people to keep Ganga and Ganga bank villages clean with the same emotion with which they take care of their daughters and mothers.

Gulab Chand Kataria from Udaipur and Kiran Maheshwari from Rajsamand in BJP List

Udaipur: Responsibility of Elections for the Rajasthan Legislative Assembly elections have been entrusted once again under the command of incumbent Chief Minister Vasundhara Raje Scindia. 5 names from Udaipur district have been repeated among the 7 released for the division, whereas those from Rajsamand are a repeat from the previous elections. The candidate from Vallabh Nagar is yet to be announced.

from 12 November being the day when the nominations for the assembly elections is starting, BJP Central Election Committee under the Presidentship of Amit Shah released their list of candidates for the Rajasthan elections to be held next month, late evening on 11 November. Gulabchand Kataria and Kiran Maheshwari have been nominated to contest from the Udaipur and Rajsamand seats respectively.

Interestingly, with the current atmosphere of polarisation prevalent in the country, the ruling party has NOT FIELDed any Muslim candidate. However, there are 25 new names in the list of 131 released by the BJP, after their meeting held yesterday evening at New Delhi, which was attended by the PM Narendra Modi, FM Arun Jaitley, MEA Sushma Swaraj and all other members of the CEC-BJP. 12 of these new nominees are women. 27% of the nominees in this first list issued by the BJP are from the reserved categories, i.e. SC-ST. It is apparent that most of the names in the list are those recommended by Vasundhara Raje Scindia and the influence of the RSS is also visible.

List of Names for Udaipur
Udaipur City - Gulab Chand Kataria
Udaipur Rural - Phool Singh Meena
Jhadol - Babu Lal Kharadi
Mavli - Dharmarayan Joshi
Kherwada - Shankar Lal Kharadi
Salumber - Amrit Lal Meena

Gogunda - Pratap Lal Gameti
List of Names for Rajsamand
Rajsamand - Kiran Maheshwari
Kumbhalgarh - Surendra Singh Rathore
Bheem - Hari Singh Rawat
Nathdwara - Not yet released.
In spite of the BJP leadership always speaking against the apparent dynastic phenomenon in the Congress, it was noted that 11 names in the first list issued by BJP are apparently under dynastic influence.

Kin of current leaders of the BJP have been given tickets to take benefit of the current hierarchy. Kailash Meghwal son of MLA Sunder Lal Meghwal and Hemant son of MLA Nand Lal Meena are some of the examples. The release of the first list of candidates by the BJP at 11 pm on 11 November will surely make the Congress and other competing parties to go revisit their nominations, as the BJP has stuck by their existing team, in spite of the prevalent antigovernment atmosphere prevalent in the state. The Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) has decided to go largely with established leaders in its first list of 131 candidates for the Rajasthan polls. The party has nominated 85 sitting MLAs and dropped 25. The 21 other tickets have gone to leaders who have contested elections before.

Supporters greet BJP MLA Narpat Singh Rajvi, who was the party ticket again for the assembly elections, in Jaipur on Monday.

BJP held 120 of the 131 seats. It has not changed candidates on winning seats.

A senior state BJP leader said tickets were given on the basis of win ability and the party decided to go with known candidates in some tight contests where it had few options.

"On several seats especially in the Bikaner and Shekhawati belts there were no strong options and so the party went with current candidates," said a BJP leader from Hanumangarh. A second party leader said on condition of anonymity that during a meeting in Delhi to decide candidates, chief minister Vasundhara Raje told the central leadership that a large scale change of candidates would give the message that the government had failed to perform at a time when the BJP is fighting the election on a development plank.

It was also felt that on many high-risk seats there were no strong alternative candidates and changing a candidate might not ensure a win, so the party decided to go ahead with incumbents, said a third BJP leader familiar with the developments. "The high command seems to have played safe and gone with Raje. They didn't want any trouble ahead of the elections. Their focus is on the 2019 general elections," said the leader.

The BJP has suffered losses in a string of recent bypolls in the state and is fighting to retain power. The first list saw the axe fall on six cabinet and three ministers of state, including PWD minister Yunus Khan, health minister Kalicharan Saraf and industry minister Rajpal Singh Shekhawat. Political analyst Narayan Bareth said it seemed Raje prevailed over the central leadership. "There was a perception that she would be sidelined. But the list has just that view." "However the BJP will have to bear the brunt of anti-incumbency against Raje and the state government," he said. "Raje's future depends on the Rajasthan result. The credit or discredit now lies with her. And if the BJP loses, then she will be in a difficult position," said Bareth.

The list that was declared late on Sunday has 12 women, 32 youth, 17 SC and 19 ST candidates.

There are 17 Rajput and 26 Jat candidates who have got tickets as the party tries to win over the two major communities.

State BJP in-charge Avinash Rai Khanna refuted speculation that the list had Raje's stamp on it, saying it was the party's list. "Workers have been given representation. The tickets have been given keeping in mind the of the party and the winability of the candidate," he said.

"We have changed 25 candidates. The second list is yet to be declared. There will be more changes," said BJP spokesperson Mukesh Pareek.

INSPIRE 2018; awards to the winners of the #InnovateToINSPIRE challenge

New Delhi: "Energy efficiency saves the environment and makes businesses more competitive. While India needs to grow but we need to grow responsibly and the Government has taken several measures in this regard," said Shri R K Singh, Union Minister of State (IC) for Power and New & Renewable Energy. The Minister was speaking at the inaugural of the International Symposium to Promote Innovation & Research in Energy Efficiency (INSPIRE 2018) here today. This is the second edition of INSPIRE and is being organised by Energy Efficiency Services Limited (EESL) and World Bank. The three-day symposium will focus on enhancing grid management, e-Mobility, financial instruments and technologies for energy efficiency in India.

The Minister further said, "Innovations in the field of energy efficiency are critical to meet our GHG (green house gases) emission targets and the Government has taken several initiatives in this regard". He also gave away awards to four pathbreaking innovations in clean energy and energy efficiency as part of #InnovateToINSPIRE, a first-of-its-kind energy innovation challenge.

The #InnovateToINSPIRE challenge was organized by EESL and World resources Institute (WRI) between 21 August, 2018 and 12 October, 2018 in the run-up to INSPIRE 2018. The challenge invited participants to submit sustainable and scalable solutions to seven specific challenges spanning grid management, e-Mobility, energy efficient technologies and financial instruments. From 94 entries, four winners were selected by an eminent jury comprised of Indian and international experts in the field of energy. The winning entries received an award of Rs. 5 lakhs, each, along with mentoring and guidance from EESL to help them bring their solutions to market.

To support investments in new, innovative and scalable business models, EESL and Asian Development Bank (ADB) signed an agreement for a Global Environment Facility (GEF) grant of USD 13 million to establish an Energy Efficiency Revolving Fund (EERF). EERF aims to expand and sustain investments in the energy efficiency market in India, build market diversification, and scale up existing technologies.

Speaking on the occasion, Shri Ajay Bhalla, Secretary, Power said that India's energy efficiency efforts were being lauded world over. He also said that innovation challenge was a very good idea to promote energy efficiency. Shri Rajeev Sharma, Chairman, EESL said, "Innovation is the most important enabler for resolving environmental problems while reducing costs." During INSPIRE 2018, EESL and GAIL, a wholly owned subsidiary of GAIL (India) Limited signed a MoU to develop natural gas based cogeneration and trigeneration projects in Commercial & Industrial Sectors in India. This MoU is set to benefit industries such as Hotels, Hospitals, Airports, Commercial Malls, Commercial/Government Buildings, Integrated Residential Complexes, Educational Institutions, Data Center, among others, with the advantages of Combined Heat & Power technology. INSPIRE 2018 has been organised in collaboration with the Bureau of Energy Efficiency (BEE), The Energy & Resources Institute (TERI), Asian Development Bank (ADB), the United Nations Environment Program (UNEP), and the Administrative Staff College of India (ASCI). The event is bringing together policy-makers, influencers, innovators, thought leaders, researchers, leading energy-efficient companies, government agencies, business leaders and other stakeholders to deliberate on key energy policies, market transformation strategies, and sustainable business models that will help leverage the full potential of energy efficiency and bring its multiple co-benefits to the fore. The event was attended by senior officials from the Ministry of Power, EESL, Dr. Junaid K. Ahmad, Country Director, The World Bank (WB); Mr. Kenichi Yokoyama, Country Director, Asian Development Bank (ADB).

Kataria and Phool Singh Meena surrounded by their own party-men

Udaipur: Home Minister Gulabchand Kataria and Udaipur-villagers, Phool Singh Meena MLA has become more threatened by his own leaders than Congress in his constituency. This time, in Mewar, the current BJP MLAs from Udaipur-city and rural areas are facing the challenge in their own party. After getting the ticket from the city to the MLA Kataria, Dalpat Surana stopped the Janata Sena and decided to contest the election in front of Kataria. State President of Namu Vichar Manch Shekhawat Manch is also opposing Kataria. Against the second and rural MLA Phulasinh Meena, Harish Meena, who is a BJP contender, has opened a front.

Congress President does not control the speech of Kataria City District Congress President Gopal Sharma also said that while opening a front against Home Minister Gulabchand Kataria, Kataria has lost control over his speech. As soon as the MLA candidate was declared, Kataria used to use unrealistic words like 'I will put acid in the root of Congress and win 28 seats in the division ...' to the workers, for whom the public will not forgive them. Sharma said that Kataria's bitter words and devious tricks of destruction, the black-looking conspiracy the opposite seems to be doing. Sharma said Kataria has said to the people of his own party that 'your vote is not needed, putting your vote in the well ...', then Kataria will now go to the people to vote for the people.

Congress to field both generals in Raj poll war

New Delhi: In a strategic move to signal preparedness the Congress decided to field both its generals — former Rajasthan Chief Minister Ashok Gehlot and state chief Sachin Pilot — in the Rajasthan poll war on December 7. Appearing together in the capital to welcome into Congress fold Harish Chandra Meena, the sitting BJP Lok Sabha member from Dausa, both Gehlot and Pilot said they will be contesting the upcoming Rajasthan assembly elections

"I will fight elections and so will Mr. Sachin Pilot," Gehlot, Congress General Secretary organisation, announced enthusiastically. Pilot, seated close to Gehlot, first sufficed to smile at his senior's remarks but later decided to corroborate him.

"On the directions of Congress President Rahul Gandhi and on the request of Shri Ashok Gehlot I will be contesting the upcoming assembly elections," said the 41 year old Rajasthan Congress President. Known to be daggers drawn in state politics, Gehlot and Pilot wore a semblance of cordiality today denying any kind of rift. But asked which seat Pilot would contest, Gehlot said seats would be declared later but shortly.

"For today it should be enough of news for you that both of us will be contesting," said Gehlot, known for his political shrewdness. Notwithstanding happy vibes between the two politicians, Congress insiders today said the move to field both was sure to intensify the race for chief minister ship of the state should Congress win on December 11, as is widely anticipated.

Sources suggest one reason why the Congress continues to hold back the list of state candidates (BJP announced its first list three days ago) was the ongoing debate on whether both Gehlot and Pilot should contest. In Madhya Pradesh, another election bound state, for instance, none of the senior leaders — state chief Kamal Nath, campaign panel chief Jyotiraditya Scindia or poll coordination committee chief Digvijay Singh — are contesting.

Gehlot, a sitting MLA from Sardarpura in Jodhpur, however has never ruled himself out of the CM race and has been clear from the start that he would fight state polls. Even today he said "everyone should fight elections."

Meanwhile Pilot, a close friend of Congress Chief Rahul Gandhi, has remained tight lipped about whether he would contest state elections considering he has never contested for assembly earlier. He was Lok Sabha MP.

It's learnt that the decision to field both Gehlot and Pilot took a while with Pilot throwing his hat in the ring in the very end should he miss out on the race for state CM-ship in case the Congress wins Rajasthan. Gehlot when asked about the CM face of the party today said the Congress had conventionally never named a CM candidate before elections in Rajasthan. "We like to respect that history," he said keeping his own and other options open. Earlier once he had said in response to a question on Congress' CM face, "Do you ever know in advance kaunbanagacrorrepati?" As far as Pilot goes, he would ensure a safe seat for himself lest he ends up like his senior CP Joshi, another Rajasthan Congress stalwart, who had lost the assembly election by one vote in 2008. Joshi was then Rajasthan Congress Chief and Ashok Gehlot went on to become state CM. Sachin Pilot would not want that history to repeat itself.
