"Morning!"

I feel like a little bit of everything, like the summarizing shreds of a blissful tragedy, like the last glimmering sunray, escaping monsoon clouds and unending oceans.
like the silver drops from a mother's eye
And,
like the cobwebs of memories in a lost home.
taking baby steps into an unending tunnel preventing myself from the darkness I could see, like a child in a factory who refuses to dream like the visage of a destitute, frightened by the reality of nightmares, acquainted with the futility of dreams. walls painted in despondence graffiti done in fading shades of life I saunter through the tunnel in fright and quite unexpectedly, begin to feel better than ever.
then,
like a toddler who wakes up abruptly from sleep by the sounds and visuals of an unfamiliar scene I foraged ahead for nothing into what appeared like nothingness until I heard someone's steps the sound amplified and I could see light again the end was near maybe, the start
but I was shook yet again, this time,
by a familiar voice
I had to rise,
it was school time
and as they say, It isn't the tunnel that is an illusion but the light at the end of it!
'Morning,' mom said,
and I ceased to reply.

Why the land of Pratap Ignored Once Again !!

Dr.H.S.Chandalia

"Chappa Chappa Bhajapa" has once again resulted in a sweeping victory for BJP in the state of Rajasthan. Nobody ever expected such a landslide victory for BJP. Even the pro BJP channels were assessing 19-20 seats for BJP and were pretty sure that Barmer, Jodhpur, Kota and Rajsamand were sure wins for Indian National Congress. Even Udaipur Lok Sabha constituency was not being considered after only a marginal win by Gulab Chand Kataria in the last Assembly elections. Banswara was also a triangular contest and with two MLAs, BTP was being perceived as a powerful contestant. Whether it was EVM manipulation or an undercurrent, only time will show but the reality is that BJP has won 25 seats and once again the people of Mewar have given 100 per cent mandate to this party.

Despite this this very important region of Mewar has been once again ignored in the Union cabinet and its historical rival Marwar has bagged all the three seats in the cabinet. Union water resources minister Gajendra Singh Shekhawat is from Jodhpur, Arjun Ram Meghwal, state minister is from Bikaner and Kailash Chaudhary is from Barmer who defeated Manvendra Singh. The entire tribal belt from Banswara to Sawai Madhopur and Karauli did not find any representation in the union cabinet. The last BJP government also did not have any representation of Mewar. Whether it is Narendra Modi or Amit Shah or Rajnath Singh whenever they come to Udaipur, they speak high sounding words about the glory of Mewar but when it comes to making any practical contribution they fail.

Arjun Lal Meena of BJP got 59.92% votes defeating Raghuveer Singh Meena by a huge margin who could get only 29.81 % of the votes cast by the people. Raghuveer Singh Meena is a member of Congress Working Committee and is close to the CM Ashok Gehlot. He belongs to ST and could have been a good choice for Narendra Modi. C.P.Joshi from Chittorgarh has defeated Dr. Girija Vyas in 2014 and has won again defeating Gopal Singh Shekhawat of Indian National Congress. His report card is good and could have been a good choice. Subhash Bahedia has won with a record margin from Bhiwarwa and is a BJP stalwart in the constituency. Diya Kumari is from the erstwhile royal family of Jaipur and defeated Devkinandan Gurjar, right hand of top Congress leader Dr. C.P.Joshi. Banswara - Dungarpur is a reserved constituency for the tribes. BTP had posed a serious challenge but BJP could wrestle this seat also. This is the most backward part of the state. Banswara has not seen a railway since independence. All this shows that once they win, the BJP leaders too, forget their promises to the people and cabinets are formed on totally personal, caste and religious parameters. It is ironical that the state government also does not have sufficient representation of the region. Political parties shed crocodile tears when they come to Udaipur, swear in the name of Pratap but when it comes to the distribution of power Mewar has always been neglected by BJP. When Vasundhara Raje was Chief Minister, because of her rivalry with Gulab Chand Kataria, Mewar was ignored. He was made Home Minister but had little say in the matters of governance. The broad gauge railway line from Udaipur to Ahmedabad has been a long term demand but almost ten years have passed, it has not become a reality, Dewas project is incomplete, Mewar tourist circuit is still a dream and the Airport at Udaipur is yet to see an international flight. The train connectivity is also pretty low and the tribal university which could have done something has been converted into a routine affiliating university which has no role to play in the field of research in tribal studies. Even other universities are starved of funds and do not have sufficient teachers. The contractual teachers have been exploited for decades who play the real teachers' role. The river Ayad, and the dream to make Udaipur Venice, now arouse a lot of laughter. Pratap Gaurav Kendra has been converted into RSS Gaurav Kendra and has little to do with the real history of the region. This year the lakes are dry and smart city of Udaipur is full of potholes on the road. People can only give their votes in a democracy. It is the party in power which has to deliver justice.
