

Days in Pinnacolis

-Arkaprava Das Episode 2

Summary of Part 1: A strange creature was wish produced by Maker, keeper of Silo of Regeneration out of a new unknown sense that explorer Pinnacolis brought to their land - Pinnacolis and trouble began from that time. Happy Pinnacolis were victims of Horrible and Terrible senses that jammed their mind pots. The story continues.....

Pinnacolis started gathering round the creature who was still fuming with agony. "Release Maker's senses immediately...You never asked for it...." Solver sent a Mandatory Notification to the creature.

"I want....I wish to bear his senses....." The creature groaned back.

"What for? You need to mention your wish before pulling any sense. We follow this procedure in Pinnacolis. You've to accept our procedures," Solver reverted.

"I wish to love the storm that you all love and play with in Pinnacolis!" The creature's body was pounding as it screamed back.

"That's very good. Sorter will be taking care of that.. You release Maker's senses since his wishes are different from yours. As you're a Pinnacolian, you should allow Maker's wish to be fulfilled," Solver sent an Urge Message.

"I'm not liking what I am.....I wish to be like Maker.....I love to bear him in me....." The creature swelled itself.

Pinnacolis were receiving the open communication. They were seeing the clear un-usuality of the newly produced creature. They all felt a need of conveying their Nested Good Fills to it to stop its peculiar transformations. Readily, they all started sending cheering senses to it. Their Nested Messages carried various boosting Fills that Pinnacolis willingly conveyed to make the creature happy.

The creature swelled up and grew in size in return. There was nothing that was able to stop its agony and Pinnacolis watched it happen. Something bad was happening in the land and Pinnacolis could not understand what it was. Their senses were getting jammed with the great confusion that they never came across before.

Inside them, they felt that Pinnacolis was becoming smaller than the most minute particle present in its air. It was becoming unbearable for them to feel their lovely land to reduce in such a way.

"I'm not ready to release anything," The creature roared as it started whirling again. It expanded itself and started covering the air of Pinnacolis as far as any Pinnacolian could see. Pinnacolis became scared. And they were not able to define their horror. They fragmented and went under the ground to their dens and shielded the panels that allowed view of outside. Everything was so startling and new that no one wished to count the loads of strange senses that stroked and scratched their mind pots. Deep inside the ground, in their own dens they tried to realise the chain of events happened on that day. Their slots kept storing their pending tasks since no one responded tremor calls. Just as they received an Immediate Circulation from Solver to put their mind pots for cleansing, Pinnacolis sensed something even more stronger shaking their receiving knob. Not realising what it was they accepted that sense and it gave an Attention Alert.

Pinnacolis became even more confused. They were receiving Attention Alerts from every pocket. Pinnacolis became puzzled. They came out and found number of creatures resembling what produced by Maker coiling around on the ground. The creature had wish produced without making notification. The creature was not following the procedures of Pinnacolis. It blocked its receiving knob and was not accepting messages from any other Pinnacolis.

"It is not receiving any of our messages. How will we make it accept that it is a Pinnacolian, one of us? How we are going to stop it from repulsing?" The common urge was communicated to every Pinnacolian and no answer came back. They wanted to be happy but all their Good Fills were numbed without their knowledge and none of them could call them back despite giving fullest efforts. Instead, they were possessed by doubt, fear, anxiety and helplessness that they never knew how to come out off.

"Let it grow. Let us start our own slots. I'll try to pour Good Fills in it so that it accepts us, our procedures and our land," Sorter made the circulation.

So, Pinnacolis agreed and went to begin their respective tasks. In the first place, Solver circulated a notification seeking for a Pinnacolian to take up the place of Maker. So, days went by with Neons, the name that Pinnacolis used to mention the new creatures as spelled first by Maker, making their wishful conducts differing entirely with what Pinnacolis followed and Pinnacolis not raising a single objection. They were actually separated from one another. Pinnacolis never wished to stop Neons nor they knew what Neons thought about them. And Pinnacolis silently went on observing the two different groups formed on its ground. Pinnacolis never stopped any of them.

Neons were everywhere on Pinnacolis, on grounds, in hubs and in air too. Pinnacolis carried on their tasks and Neons always watched them saying absolutely nothing. Happy Pinnacolis never assumed that their procedures could bring such a misery.

Problems arose promptly. In front of watchful Neons, Pinnacolis built things and left. The other moment they found things broken or transformed. Pinnacolis found Neons breaking things, remarking and crushing them again and again. No one knew why. No one said or asked why. There was no communication between Pinnacolis and Neons. One day, Ratio became too curious. She saw her thing broken instantly as she built it. She saw Neons making different things out of the pieces and crushing and remaking. Neons were screaming and fuming with unknown excitement. She could not stop herself. She moved ahead and conveyed her compliments to Neons for the things they made but her message was blocked. Neons never accepted her compliments. Neons were not willing to say anything to Ratio. Ratio stood in silence. She never found anything to say any more. She became upset and she could not tame its trembling. She released herself. She let herself mix in the air of Pinnacolis and Neons watched that.

The matter remained not so normal any more for Pinnacolis. Now, they were becoming conscious on the Harming Strokes that were scratching their mind pots. They were not willing to allow them hover but they found no escape. They were getting tired watching the Breaking Game played by Neons. They were becoming more and more doubtful as they found themselves always watched, their things strangely missing and their dens disturbed. Above all, they were panicked with a fresh Harming Stroke that often squeezed their Good Fills their fury. Air of Pinnacolis was changing too. No dust flakes were sprinkled anymore in joyful zeal. Pinnacolis stopped fragmenting and twirling in the air. No jigsaws were on the ground to express any new thought. Communications were also getting lost. Pinnacolis needed their space but they stopped looking for it.

One night, as Solver found a Neon slipped inside the Hive sucking out senses from the pores and pouring something that was not known, he did what no Pinnacolian ever did before. His fury tore all bounds and he never resisted his violence. Putting his extreme impulse, he dragged that Neon by its hair and threw it away in the air. He saw that Neon's body shooting out, tangling in the air and breaking apart. He never knew how it broke. In fact, Solver felt a momentary relief and the next moment he sensed mass walls fast growing in sound. He circulated Alert Message to Pinnacolis and saw Neons approaching him. He stood still and Neons gathered around him. They were tickling Solver with their hairs without saying anything. Pinnacolis were coming out one by one from their dens. They were silent.

"You know how to break us?" Asked a voice from Neons.

"No. And I never wish to break any of you. I wanted to stop that Neon from spoiling the Hives of Senses," conveyed Solver.

"We're not spoiling Sense Hives....We put whatever we find...." Said a Neon.

"None of you convey anything to us. I maintain the Hives of Senses. It is for every Pinnacolian. I would have accepted the fresh senses that you got if you had conveyed us a notification. It is a result of some strange sense inside you that you're not following anything that we follow. Pinnacolis are upset for whatever you're doing. You never come to us. You never talk to us or listen us. Why?" Solver conveyed a Seek Message nesting the senses of Pinnacolis that he received.

"We don't know....We enjoy with it...." Replied Neons.

"Pinnacolis are joy filled too. But you are not like us.

Don't you like our ways?" Solver, like every other Pinnacolian, wished to put an end to this silly dispute.

"We don't know....And we don't want to explain ourselves....." Roared Neons.

There was nothing to explain in differences. No one showed any willingness to hear any more explanations. There was silence. Pinnacolis became silent too all of a sudden. Storm stopped. Quake ceased. It appeared as if Pinnacolis had broken loose from the surrounding space. Pinnacolis looked around themselves and found a calm Pinnacolis everywhere. And the Neons roared even louder. They kept roaring and whirled up in space. They collided with one another and broke apart in uncountable pieces. Pinnacolis saw the pieces flying away in space. Pinnacolis quaked again after some time and storm started a few moments later. Pinnacolis never found any Neons. They were lost somewhere in the vast space.

"No need to worry anymore...." Notification from Solver reached to Pinnacolis at last. The Message said, "Whatever scratched our mind pots during the days that are gone can be effaced with our Good Fills and all others that our wanderers are going to collect in their future explorations. I've built a sieve to gather strange senses inside any Harming Stroke. Using the sieve, I've found the sense that produced all Neons in our land? Self-dislike, that I cannot define.

It is a useless sense and in this vast space there can be many such useless senses that we do not need. From now on, no sense will be emitted unchecked. I've gathered the Horribles and Terribles that stroked in our mind pots. They are unwanted in Pinnacolis and so I'm not storing them in our Hives of Senses. Instead, our Boosters can spread them as food dust. I've checked their strong impulses and they can be extracted as replenishment."

Like that, land of Pinnacolis saw Pinnacolis to live in it happily once again.

Synopsis: The fictional story narrates the dark past days of Pinnacolis, a planetary system located somewhere in the universe that left its innocent people victims of several hard feelings completely unknown to them. It is the merciful environment that helped them at last to escape the disaster and live happily again.

Just waiting for an announcement, investor-ready, landmarked

Udaipur: With the establishment of Film City in Lake City, now the Rajasthan government's permission has been only a hindrance. Earlier, no land was available near the city, lack of investor, etc. was coming to the fore. Still, due to ten years of hard work of Mukesh Madhwani, Chairman of Film Sangharsh Samiti, now only the government is waiting for its yes.

According to Mukesh Madhwani, till now, there was doubt about the land and money, which has also gone away because the administration has seen the land in the Gogunda area and many people associated with the film industry in Mumbai are ready to invest in film city production. Just waiting for the permission of the Rajasthan government, after which work can be started for setting up Film City in Udaipur. Here, in this regard, the country's oldest PHD Chamber of Commerce and Industries wrote a letter to the Chief Minister of the state, Ashok Gehlot, reminding them of the promise mentioned in their manifesto, in which the Congress had said that the establishment of a film city in the state if a government is formed in Rajasthan.

The Chairman of the Rajasthan Committee of the Chamber, Digvijay Dhabariya said that as a result of the efforts of Mukesh Madhwani (PHD Chamber's Coordinator of Udaipur, PhD Chamber), who is striving for Film City at the local level, the district administration has also identified 526 bigha land in Gogunda area. Has been taken, which was the biggest obstacle in film city production. Now, this hurdle has been removed, then the announcement of the creation of Film City in Udaipur should be made.

Rajasthan committee co-chairman Sunil Dutt Goyal said that the production of Film City in Udaipur would employ millions of people in Udaipur, but the state government will also get more revenue as expected. He said that by becoming Film City in Rajasthan, the local and state talent would have an opportunity to showcase their talent at the national level.

He said that the Udaipur city of Rajasthan is one of the most beautiful cities in the world. The beauty of the city is not only convincing to the tourists but also attracts people associated with the film industry. Due to this, the shooting of any film, serial, web series usually continues here. Udaipur is, in many ways, a suitable place for a film city where all kinds of resources can be readily available. Along with this, about one lakh people will get direct and indirect employment in tribal-dominated South Rajasthan. Along with this, the establishment of Film City will increase productivity opportunities along with a positive impact on productivity and will have a direct effect on the country's economy.

Put your energy and time in the right direction: Dr. Rathore

Udaipur: Vice-Chancellor Dr. Narendra Singh. Rathore of Maharana Pratap University of Agriculture and Technology University, Udaipur. While speaking to the participants On the second day of the 14-day e-summer camp for 6-12-year-old boys of university personnel, shared the sweet and sweetest experiences from your childhood to growing up, telling children the tricks to live life effortlessly, and straightforwardly, they said happiness within themselves. For this, do not run after the worldly pleasures. He said that you all have a lot of power and time to put it in a positive direction and achieve the life goal. He narrated that the place of friends after parents and gurus and Described mother as the best and closest friend, guide, and called for inspiration of herself by taking education from the lives of successful individuals. Entrepreneurs and the public should close together

Udaipur: After the COVID-19 spread across the world from China, many countries of the world unite and end trade relations with China and boycott the buying and selling of Chinese products. Forti in the country and region gave the slogan of 'Global - Chinese bandh,' made the locale.

Also, many organizations and trade associations are boycotting Chinese products. According to Praveen Suthar, chairman of Forti's branch, smartphones from China are coming to India at 72 percent, pharmaceutical products 60 percent, electronics 45 percent, solar energy 90 percent, iron steel 20 percent, and plastic grocery 78 percent.

According to Suthar, one section of the Indian psyche is spreading awareness in the society about not buying Chinese goods. On the other hand, according to another part of society, this is the work of the Government of India. When the government is signing new economic and trade contracts with China and importing Chinese goods on its own, the Indian public expects to abandon the temptation to buy cheap foreign goods that have an imported label. People and entrepreneurs should jointly stop the purchase and sale of imported Chinese products and adopt self-contained products and take the initiative for self-reliant India.

According to Suthar, the Central Government had recently released a list of 66 products imported from China. In this regard, urging entrepreneurs to start manufacturing these imported products and that the entrepreneurs will come forward, the government will provide all possible help.
