If you want happiness for yourself, give happiness to others - Sadhvi Dr. Chintan Shri Masa

Bhilwara : In the Charitramasik Dharma Sabha organized at Ahimsa Bhawan in Bhilwara Shastrinagar, Mahasadhvi Madhu Kanwar said that jealousy and malice are the two main demerits of human beings, which is enough to make him sad. If these feelings remain in the mind continuously for a long time, it forms a mental disorder. The question and the problem are why a man is unhappy with the happiness of others. There can be two types of sick people in life, one who is sad because of their misery while the other are those who are unhappy because of the happiness of others. The former may deserve sympathy, while those in the second category also deserve sympathy, but their context will change.

Sadhvi Pratibha Kanwar Masa explained that if we cannot give happiness to someone, then he has no right to hurt him. It is said that happiness increases by sharing. The desire to see others happy is also perhaps a trick to increase one's happiness. Wishing for the enjoyment of others will prevent us from being unhappy with the joy of others.

The same thoughts will remain in our minds if we want to hurt others. Sadhvi Chintan Shri Masa said that in life, many questions cannot be answered, and sometimes many questions can be answered by some.

Whenever a person is most unhappy, he should ask himself, who is he disgusted with? From the happiness of others or your misery? Seeing others happy, we feel sad or hurt, so are we destroying our joy and peace? If we rejoice in the happiness of others, we may also find people wishing for our own happiness. Scholars say that if you want happiness, give it happiness. The choice is our own whether we wish joy or sorrow. Manish Bamb, the convener of the campaign committee, said that the four-day women's awakening camp had ended. The camp was organized daily from 2 pm to 4 pm, in which many women above 45 years of age participated. Shri Sangh Patron Hemant Anchaliya, President Ashok Pokharna, Minister Sushil Chhaplot, Vice President Himmat Singh Bapna, Jatan Jain, Co-Minister Dinesh Mehta, Treasurer Jawsant Singh Daglia, Bherusinh Babel, Amar Singh Babel, etc. were present.

Navagraha Ashram distributed 27 thousand medicine packets free of cost

Sri Navagraha Gaudarshan Gausahala, run by Shrinavagraha Ashram Seva Sansthan, located at Motibor Ka Kheda in Bhilwara district, has prepared the medicine from the Ayurveda mixture prepared by the research team for the prevention of lumpy disease in cows in the country. This medicine is being distributed free of cost for the treatment of cows.

In a week, more than 27 thousand medicine packets have been distributed. In this, 7 thousand parcels have been delivered to the cattle owners through Bhilwara Dairy. Medicines are being distributed from Navagraha Ashram itself. Any animal owner can reach there and get it. Dosing an animal for only three days shows excellent results, and the number of deaths of animals is being stopped.

Hansraj Chaudhary, founder and president of Shrinavagraha Ashram Seva Sansthan said that the research team Ayurveda had prepared the medicine from an Ayurveda mixture based on the government's guidelines. A packet of 300 grams of the drug has been designed by mainly including Amla, Giloy, Black pepper, Turmeric, Sanaya leaves, Ashwagandha, Neem leaves, Kalmegh, Shyam Tulsi, Rock salt, and Kalijiri. All the components are taken in equal quantity in it. Mix this mixture in 500 grams of jaggery, make six laddus or liquid, and feed it to a cow suffering from lumpy disease.

After giving two doses in the morning and evening, the disease seems to end on the third day. Chaudhary said that apart from the Bhilwara district, about 27 thousand medicine packets have been distributed to the cattle farmers of Rajsamand, Chittorgarh, Udaipur, Bundi, Kota, and Ajmer.

Under this, treatment is being done in an Ayurvedic way. In this, 7 thousand have been delivered to the livestock farmers of the district through Bhilwara Dairy. These medicine packets have been given to the dairy at the request of Revenue Minister Ramilal Jat. He told that this treatment is the same as at the time of corona, man had increased the immunity of his body through the Ayurvedic method. Chaudhary said that the Ayurvedic approach effectively boosts immunity, allowing animals to fight that disease. He said that when these laddos are fed to the cow, she is also eating well. Also, when the cattle have a high fever and swollen lymph glands, a lot of saliva comes from the mouth, a burning sensation in the nose and eyes. A sick animal should be bathed with neem, camphor, and cow urine of a healthy cow. If water is coming and there are large wounds in many parts of the body of the animal, from which pus is coming, then smoke should be done around the animal. The cowshed and its premises should be washed by adding phenyl to this mixture. It is an important drug to prevent virus infection. Chaudhary told that the medicines prepared by Navagraha Ashram had shown promising results. An ashram is giving this medicine absolutely free of cost. Initially, after reaching the village, the treatment was given, but due to the high demand, now only the cattle owners who run the ashram could provide it. Due to the time taken in making and packing the medicine, distribution is not being done outside. The cow giving milk is suffering the most. Mahipal Chaudhary, director of Navagraha Ashram Godarshan Gausahala, said that the lumpy disease, which starts with a common fever, profoundly affects the cows. After recovering from the illness, the cow can give only half the milk than before. It is taking at least a month for him to return to normalcy. This disease spread in cows is causing significant economic loss to the cattle farmers. The animal is becoming very weak due to the disease. The more the lump is visible outside the body, the more it hurts the animal inside. To relieve the animal's groaning from pain and fever, it is necessary to give Ayurveda medicine. Due to illness, he stops eating and drinking. Due to this, the condition of many cows becomes such that they are not able to give even enough milk to drink to their calf. The effect of lumpy is more visible in those animals whose immunity is already weak. The animal becomes more vulnerable due to disease. It is natural to affect milk production. If animal husbandry gives sufficient nutritious food to the healthy animal from the disorder, then the animal will become as milky as before. The founder president of the ashram, Hansraj Chaudhary, said that animal husbandry should also take these precautions to prevent lumpy. The premises where the cows are kept should be kept clean and tidy. The sick animal should be bathed with a healthy cow's neem, camphor, and cow urine. The cowshed and its premises should be washed by adding phenyl to this mixture. The sick cow should be isolated on one side. There should be smoke on the premises so that there are no flies and mosquitoes. Air should be arranged for the cows by installing fans.

It takes time to earn merit, but it does not take long to finish - Samkit Muni Bhilwara, mind, Lakshmi, and children are fickle; staying in one place is difficult. If children do not obey their parents, then parents are more responsible than children. The mind of the children was set that whatever I say will be fulfilled. The adjustable mode of life is over. You always listened to the children's words, so now, you do not listen to them when you grow up. These views were expressed by Shramanasangh Advisor Sumatiprakashji M.S. Disciple of knowledge, Pragyamaharishi Dr. Samakitmuni M.S., told in regular Chaturmasik discourses on Friday at Shanti Bhavan. He said that bypassing the way of life there led to problems. From childhood, it should be understood that what he has to say, then agree to say it further. Even the mind and Lakshmi do not keep moving. To control them, the solution has been told in the Agama that the reason should always be like a sage and not like a coolie. If the mind is like a sage, it will remain in one place, whereas if it is like a porter, it will keep moving. The sense of a sage destroys all the karma when the time comes.

Munishree said that we bring sin by spending virtue, whereas it takes time to earn virtue, but it does not take time to eliminate it. Therefore, please do not spend the integrity unnecessarily; make good use of it. At the beginning of the religious assembly, the vocalist Jaywant Muniji M.S.
